COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

Clifford Hillier has been employed by the Board of Assessors to take the inventory in the village area, starting his work on Monday of this week. His authority is limited to taking the inventory of taxable property. The establishing of valuation is done by the Assessors.

The assessors' collectors meeting held at Rumford last Thursday was very well attended. Problems pertaining to assessment and collection of taxes were discussed. Changes in the law were explained. One important change in the veterans exemption, particularly those over age 62, was pointed out. Formerly a veteran and wife owning property jointly, only the veteran was exempt on his half to $3,500 valuation. The change provides that where a qualified veteran holds his domicile in joint tenancy with his spouse, the exemption shall be applied in its entirety to the domicile. This means that the spouse's interest is included in the exemption, but that any other property, real or personal, owned by the veteran wherever located is excluded from the exemption.

At the last meeting of the Selectmen the following appointments were made: Health Officer, Widd B. Twaddle, M. D.; Sealer of Weights and Measures, Elmer E. Bennett; Fire Ward, Roderick McMillin; Constables, Roderick McMillin, Leton Hutchinson, Alphonse Baker; Fence Viewers, John H. Carter, Leslie Davis, Hugh Thurston; Zoning Board of Appeals for 3 years, Richard Davies; Tree Warden, Sumner Burgess. The position of Dog Officer is still open.

Sincerely,
Harold L. Bean

BETHEL LOSES TWO BUILDINGS IN WEEK

The lock-up on High Street, which for many years sheltered occasional transients and transgressors of the law, has been torn down. The property was sold by the town to Gould Academy last year.

The house on Mill Hill, known in recent years as the Shaw place, was razed by fire last Sunday. This property was acquired by Bethel Inn last summer.

This brings to at least three the buildings lost since April 1 of last year, the Robertson building at Main and Elm Streets being destroyed to provide parking space at the Thunderbird Motor Inn.

Census Enumerators Easy to Identify

Householders will not have any difficulty identifying the takers of the 1960 Census of Population and Housing when they start their rounds on April 1, District Supervisor Edward I. Bernstein pointed out today.

Each census taker will be provided with a red, white, and blue identification card to be worn on the lapel. This card bears the seal of the Department of Commerce and the words "Census Enumerator, Official (Credential)" are printed across its face. Persons purporting to be Census takers who do not have this identification card should be reported immediately to the local district office which is located at 562 Congress Street, Portland, Maine.

Census takers will be further identified by the portfolio containing their supplies. The portfolio is brown and bears the legend "1960 Census of the United States," printed in green ink. In the portfolio, the census taker carries his supplies of report forms, maps, pencils, and other tools of his trade.

SELLING IMPROVED U. S. SAVINGS BONDS

As a patriotic service, the man at the window will be glad to give you important information on recent improvements in United States Savings Bonds. These improvements apply to all Savings Bonds — both newly purchased and presently held.

Series E and H Savings Bonds purchased on and after June 1, 1959 pay 3¾% interest when held to maturity.

Series E Bonds, which increase in value every 6 months, now mature faster — in 7 years and 9 months. Yields in the earlier years are higher than before.

Series H Bonds, which pay interest by semiannual Treasury check, continue to mature in 10 years, but the increased yield shows up in the interest checks.

All series E and H Bonds purchased prior to June 1, 1959, also earn more — approximately ½% more in future yields to maturity. Terms on E Bonds held in the 10-year extension period after maturity also have been improved. No action by the holder is required to get the higher rate.

This bank will be glad to serve you in the purchase of U. S. Savings Bonds and to answer your questions on bonds, both old and new.

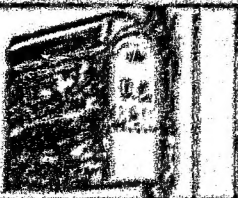

Through Savings Bonds millions of Americans are contributing to their own financial security and to our country's economic and military strength.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR...

Editor
Oxford County Citizen
Bethel, Maine

My attention has been called to two letters which have recently appeared in the Oxford County Citizen in regard to the way in which Bethel elementary teachers' salaries compare with those of the rest of the state.

Bethel teachers' salaries this year average $3500. The average for the whole state is $4100. There are 42 towns with a population between 1000 and 2499, which do not maintain a public high school. Twenty-two of the 42 pay salaries that are higher than Bethel's, the highest being $4691.

In regard to salary schedules, the Bethel plan is so much different from all others that it is difficult, if not impossible, to compare it with other schedules in the state.

The Bethel salary schedule is different in several ways. 1. It allows little credit for experience.

2. In other towns, the practice is to publish a salary for beginning teachers; in Bethel, there is no salary published. Different beginning teachers with the same preparation may receive different salaries.

3. Most of the Bethel schedule is simply on paper. The highest salary actually paid in Bethel was $4150 last year. That is for a teacher with four years of preparation. Following is the maximum paid in some towns of comparable size: Dover-Foxcroft, $4200; Thomaston, $4500; Vassalboro, $4575; Searsport, $4600; Easton, $4300. These are, I believe, typical.

What I have said is not intended to be critical of Bethel's system of arriving at teachers' salaries. That is another story. I am merely pointing out that the figures which were announced in Bethel's schedule, when they are above $4100, are not the kind of figures that buy groceries. They simply are guesses by the school committee and teachers about what salaries will be like some day.

The increases this year will not be enough to place the town in a competitive position in bargaining for new teachers.

Sincerely yours,
Clyde Russell
Executive Secretary
Maine Teachers Assn.

Thursday, March 31:

Read Isaiah 1:19-20 or John 14:15-21.

Come now, let us reason together, saith the Lord: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool. (Isaiah 1:18.)

Isaiah comes nearer approaching the Gospel standard of righteousness than any other Old Testament prophet. So true is this that he is frequently referred to as the Gospel Prophet.

There is a remarkable similarity in method of approach, as well as content, in the above text and many of the sayings of Jesus. In both instances religion is assumed to be most reasonable. If you can get men to stop long enough really to think through the problems of life, they will discover, as all true followers of the Lord Jesus Christ have discovered, that a real religious experience is the most satisfying thing in all the world.

The difficulty with so many professed Christians is that they fail to enter deeply enough into the experience of religion to test its value. Let us consecrate our lives wholly to the Lord Jesus Christ and daily seek the guidance of the Holy Spirit. This way leads to victorious living.

PRAYER: Heavenly Father, may men everywhere realize the folly of placing their reliance upon material things and vision a world in which spiritual values are given their proper place. May Thy will be done and Thy kingdom come. For Jesus' sake and in His blessed name. Amen.

AMONG THE HILLS OF DEAR OLD MAINE

Early Greenwood

by Eleanor K. Lovejoy
Description, and settlement of the town.

Early Greenwood was a pleasant farming and manufacturing town situated near the middle of Oxford County. It is bounded by Woodstock in the northeast, Bethel on the north, Paris at the southeast, Norway on the south and Albany on the west.

The area by original survey was 20,529 acres. The town is 9½ miles long and 4½ miles wide. The surface is quite broken having about a dozen mountains and large hills. The highest of these are Mt. Abram, Long, Overland, and Rock Dundee. These are ten ponds shown on the map, running north and south. The outlet of the most northerly of these runs into the Big Androscoggin River at Bethel. Others in the chain form the source of the Little Androscoggin. The largest of these is South Pond in the northeastern part of town.

Wentworth Ice Caves are the most notable curiosity in Greenwood and are visited every year by many people. The bed rock formation is mostly granite with some syenite. The soil is very fertile adapted to agriculture. Many fine potatoes used to be grown here and Greenwood farmers raised many wonderful apples. On the outlets of several of the ponds water powers were developed, and here were built saw, and grist mills, also a wool mill driven by steam. The business center of the town was and still is, at Locke Mills. In 1880 there were two Post Offices, one at Locke Mills, and one at Greenwood City.

The settlement of Greenwood was commenced in 1802 by William Yates. He was soon followed by Thomas Furlong and Timothy Patch. In 1805 there were 13 families, living in Greenwood. Among the early and valued citizens of Greenwood may be mentioned, Thomas Crocker, Seth Hilborn, Samuel B. Locke, and Samuel Houghton. There were in 1880 a Union Church and twelve schoolhouses in the town. The schoolhouses were valued at $2400. The valuation of the town in 1880 was $149,075 and the population was 338.

The town of Greenwood was well adorned with the beauties of nature with its many lovely lakes and hills. Probably the Red Men enjoyed it here because of the good fishing and hunting. There is a legendary story which tells how an early settler in this quiet town put all his money into iron pots and buried them in a clearing at the top of Patch Mountain. To those who knew about it he gave this warning, that if anyone tried to dig up the money, ghosts would appear to them and the trespasser would be in dire trouble. Some were brave and climbed the mountain with their picks and shovels to find the money. Soon there were strange noises, and strange lights in the clearing. The adventurers soon left, and without the money. Perhaps the noises were from wind howling through the trees, and the apparitions brought about by someone's imagination working overtime. I am sure I do not know as I was not there.

MANY HOUSEWIVES STILL OWE SOC. SEC. RETURNS ON DOMESTIC WORKERS

Housewives in this part of Maine still owe social security returns on a good many domestic employees, said Whitney J. Wheeler, District Director of Internal Revenue, and John M. Beale, Social Security District Manager in Lewiston, in a joint warning. Though household work in private homes has been covered by social security for nearly ten years, these officials conclude, the householders responsible for reporting the wages often just don't bother to acquaint herself with her obligations.

When the worker comes to apply for social security benefits, the district supervisor emphasized that all information about individuals and their homes furnished to the Census Bureau is held in absolute confidence under Federal law. It is used only to provide summary figures such as totals, averages, and percentages. The information about individuals cannot be examined by any one other than Census employees who are sworn to secrecy, and thus cannot be used for investigation, taxation, or regulation.

fits, a summary of her reported wages is drawn up. Time and time again, the summary fails to show any wage reportings by the household employer. Then, in order to determine benefit rights, the Social Security Administration must obtain from the employer a statement of the wages which should have been reported. Frequently, the work was done, and the wages were paid, several years ago, making it difficult for the employer to reckon the needed figures of wage payments per quarter.

Next, the social security people pass along to the Internal Revenue Service a record of their findings in the case. The latter agency must thereupon determine how much social security tax, interest and penalty are due, and collect that sum. The longer the situation has been allowed to go unheeded, the more in effort and money to get it straightened out.

The term "domestic employee" may bring to mind the retinue of servants of a wealthy family. According to Wheeler and Beale these are only a fraction of the workers to whom the term applies; more often, in Maine, the domestic worker covered by social security is the baby sitter, or the woman who comes in and does cleaning one day a week, or the woman who stays with the children while the mother works, or the companion to an

Christian Science
Overcoming of fatigue and weariness through entirely spiritual means will be a theme dealt with at Christian Science services this Sunday.

Scripture: "Hast thou not known? Hast thou not heard, that the everlasting God, the Lord, the Creator of the ends of the earth, fainteth not, neither is weary? there is no searching of his understanding. He giveth power to the faint; and to them that have no might he increaseth their strength." (Isaiah 40:28-29.)

aged or infirm individual. For social security, the test is only whether the employer pays the worker at least $50 in cash wages in a quarter-year for services of a household nature in or around the employer's private home. (The only exception to this test applies to domestic in farm homes, who come under the coverage rules for agricultural workers.)

If the test is met, the wages must be reported and the tax paid, and the worker gains credit toward old-age, survivor, and disability insurance under social security. Thus, regular wages of as little as $4 a week mean that reports are due, since they come to over $50 in the normal 13-week quarter.

Age of the worker makes no difference, and the rule is the same for a man doing domestic work as for a woman. Incidentally, it may be the man of the house, rather than the housewife, who is the employer. And considerable of this is done in the smaller towns; it isn't a feature of large communities alone.

This year, the social security tax rate is 3% for the employee and 3% for the employer, a total of 6% of wages which the employer is to send in with the return.

Obligation on the employer to make reports is not affected by the fact that some other employer may also be making a return on the same worker. Each and every employer who pays the domestic $50 or more in cash wages in a calendar quarter must report. It is compulsory for the employer to do so, and the obligation cannot be passed over to the employer to report under the guise of self-employment earnings.

Neither does the employee's preference about being under social security make any difference. In the past, some employers have seemed to defer to the worker's notion that she didn't want any coverage, and have failed to report; this, of course, was wrong. Incidentally, every social security district office has heard from some past employer of a household worker who at first wanted no part of social security or the deductions from wages that pay for it, but later claimed benefits and was then very much concerned that every dollar of wages from that employer be credited to her.

Employers of domestics can get information about these requirements from the District Office of the Internal Revenue, Augusta, Maine. Domestic workers wanting to know about their social security rights should contact their Social Security District Office, which for the Bethel area is at 66 Park Street, Lewiston.

COUNTRY FLAVOR

BARN DOORWAY

It is good to sit for a spell on a mellow, white-cloud, blue-sky day in an open barn doorway. After months of cold winds and heaped snow, one can hear, see, smell and feel the spirit of spring.

Old barns are part of our heritage. In Old World countries barns are small. But when men hewed homes from the New World wilderness, they built big barns—barns that matched the grandeur of their dreams. A big barn was an expression of the philosophy that "man" a man could live as a free human being, guiding his own affairs, and responsible for the results.

Man is inarticulate in the presence of great emotions, but he can feel what he cannot express in words. A farmer for a period in his barn doorway is king of his domain. The cattle rattle their stanchions; his dog snoozes beside him. The hens talk among themselves as they scratch in the chaff.

It is pleasant to sit and look over the fields, good to half-drowse in the warm of the noonday sun while thinking and planning the season's work. I now sit still heaped against the north side of the barn and pined on the shady side of the tree house and silo.

But when a man can sit comfortably in his barn doorway and feel the heat of the sun, smell the warming soil, and listen to a robin calling in the orchard, he knows the miracle is happening again. "For to the winter is past" and the time of new life is at hand. Living in a barn doorway is a way to feel before starting the afternoon's work. It is also a way to bolster the heart with the knowledge that the ancient promise has never failed.

1960 CENSUS STARTS

FRIDAY, APRIL 1

The 1960 Census of Population and Housing, the nation's 18th decennial base count, gets underway on Friday morning, April 1, with 100,000 census takers starting their rounds which will take them to every dwelling unit in the United States. In covering the 3½ million square miles of land area of the 50 States, the census takers will travel an estimated combined distance of more than 1,000 times around the world, or approximately 20 million miles.

Residents of this area can speed up the big count by having their Advance Report

MAN'S RECIPE

BANANA-CHOCOLATE COOKIE

Most of us think of the word "flour" when someone says "wheat." But wheat is only one of many grass grains, including maize or corn. Yes, corn is a grass, as is bamboo.

Records prove that wheat was grown in China in 2700 B. C. The word "cereal" has its origin in mythology and Ceres is the Greek goddess of agriculture. Buckwheat, barley, oats, millet and sorghum are widely grown cereals. Barley is the only grain crop grown from the Arctic Circle to the hot plains of India. In Scotland, famous for raising oats and men, a pleasant custom is to break an oatmeal cake over the bride's head for good luck!

If you like banana flavor, try this cookie—and I'll be happy to get your opinion. Use one six ounce package of chocolate bits, two and one third cups flour, two and a fourth teaspoons baking powder, one fourth teaspoon soda, three fourths teaspoon salt, one half cup plus one tablespoon shortening, two tablespoons orange juice, three fourths teaspoon vanilla, one and a fourth cups sugar, two eggs beaten, one cup mashed bananas.

Melt chocolate bits and cool. Sift together flour, baking powder, soda and salt. Cream together the shortening, orange juice, vanilla and sugar. Add eggs and blend well.

Blend melted chocolate into creamed mixture. Add flour, mix alternately with the banana. Beat all well!

Drop by teaspoon on greased cookie sheets. Bake at 400 for 12-14 minutes, or until done. This has a good strong banana flavor which appeals to me.

Forms filled out and ready for the census takers. This action will save time for both the householder and the census taker, the census official said.

The Advance Report was distributed to local households prior to the start of the house-to-house canvass. It contains the seven population and six housing questions which are asked of all persons. The Advance Report Form gives the family a chance to assemble information about each member in advance of the census taker's visit. The use is expected to speed up the field canvass and provide more accurate statistics.

At every fourth household, the census taker will leave a Census Household Questionnaire which contains additional questions covering population and housing characteristics which are being asked of a 25 percent sample of the population. Householders are requested to fill out the questionnaire and mail it within three days to the local

Outlook For The Automobile Industry — 1960

This year is likely to be the third largest for domestic passenger car auto production in the United States. Although it is difficult to make an accurate forecast as to the exact number of units to be produced, we believe that production will fall somewhere around the 6,500,000 car level. This forecast has been predicted on several assumptions. First, it is believed that sales lost last fall as a result of shortages created by the steel strike will not be recovered. Secondly, it is believed that sales would have been higher in January and February had it not been for the unfavorable weather and also for the decline in the stock market. The sales lost during that period are expected to be made up this spring when better weather conditions appear. At that time there will probably be a more optimistic attitude on the part of purchasers as a result of possible higher stock prices, a more favorable economic climate and easier money rates. In the third place, it is believed that when 1961 models are introduced, changes will not be radically different and the initial impact of the compact car will have worn off. Therefore, sales at that time are not expected to rise above normal. Adjustments are being made for the fact that inventories in dealers' hands are likely to be reduced between now and the end of the year.

There has been a great deal of interest as to what effect the new compact cars created by the Big Three would have on foreign car sales. It must be recognized there is a certain group of consumers who will continue to purchase foreign cars either for prestige purposes or for the novelty, but already early indications point to the fact that the foreign car is beginning to lose its competitive position in the U.S. market. Currently there are believed to be dealers' inventories of these cars existing at 125,000 units. Sales and advertising pressures are now being utilized, all indicating that these cars are becoming increasingly difficult to sell.

As far as domestic car production is concerned General Motors and Chrysler have made competitive gains while Ford has lost out along with American Motors and Studebaker Packard. Coincidentally enough, Ford's Falcon is running a close race competitively with American Motors' Rambler and at the same time Falcon's sales have cut into the sales of the Ford car to a point where it is losing out competitively to General Motors' Chevrolet and even to some extent to Chrysler's Plymouth. Ford, however, is introducing a new compact car called the Comet, but its introduction is so recent that as yet there is no way of evaluating public acceptance.

Specifically we feel that Ford offers the best investment value of the auto stocks today, although General Motors may also be considered a fairly good value. The market action of General Motors is likely to be impeded somewhat by the uncertainties of the DuPont anti-trust suit whereby large blocks of General Motors stock may be spun off from DuPont to its stockholders. On a speculative basis for the next six months, perhaps not longer, Chrysler and American Motors are worthy of some consideration. Commitments in these two issues should be limited to those willing to take a relatively high degree of risk.

In the final analysis the year 1960 appears to be a promising one for the automobile industry, although the sharp market rise of auto stocks during the last six months of 1959 anticipated to great extent the 1960 outlook. Whether any of these stocks will sell above their 1959 highs is questionable in view of the uncertainties facing us in 1961. If the 4-year cycle in business indices which has existed since World War II continues, there could be a recession in business activity before the end of 1961 which would of course take its toll on the auto industry.

...CORVAIR IS BOTH!

A wonderfully useful folding seat makes every Corvair two cars in one. Just one quick flip and you increase the luggage and parcel space to 28.9 cubic feet. And just as simply, you're back to comfortable six-passenger capacity. It's standard equipment ... and extraordinarily practical.

Corvair does car-pool duty with the biggest and best of them. Going to work or school or out for the evening, you've got a genuine six-seater. As for carrying around piles of stuff instead of people, just look at Corvair's station-sedan load space with the rear seat folded. And when that's full you can start on the trunk.

Corvair, you see, is no ordinary compact car. No others are so versatile, so ingeniously engineered—with independent suspension at all four wheels, an air-cooled rear engine that never needs water or antifreeze. You just can't compare anything else coming out these days with a Corvair. Drive one ... soon.

1960 MAINE HIGHWAY MAP BEING DISTRIBUTED

The 1960 Official Maine Highway Route Maps are now being distributed by the State Highway Commission. They are, or soon will be, available to all Maine State Highway Commission offices, Department of Economic Development, Publicity Bureau, chambers of commerce and travel bureaus.

The new map is designed to assist the motorist in every way. U. S. Routes are in red. State Routes in black, and unnumbered routes in grey. The land area of the State is white; lakes, rivers, oceans are blue; bordering New Hampshire and Canada are in pink and green. State Parks are printed in vivid green and cities of 10,000 and over in population are in yellow. Around the border of the new edition of the map 8 large scale inset maps help the motorist locate routes in the urban areas of Rumford, Bangor-Brewer, Saco-Biddeford, Waterville-Winslow, Portland-South Portland, Auburn-Lewiston, Augusta and Kittery. A handy index aids the traveler in computing distances between 49 Maine towns; and a legend gives the symbols for the Appalachian Trail, parks, camp sites, picnic areas, game management areas, etc.

On the reverse side 70 places of interest around the State have been pin-pointed on a relief map that shows their relation to major and other highways. Besides a brief description of each location 15 of these points of interest are shown in a border of colorful photos. Also included on this side of the map is informational material covering the geography of Maine, its industries, recreational features, and a highway route mileage log with cumulative mileages.

The cover of the 1960 Official Highway Map shows handsome Mount Katahdin in Baxter State Park, the State's highest elevation (5267 feet).

EXTENSION MEMBERSHIP PASSES 17,000 MARK

Membership in the County Extension Associations in Maine has reached 17,093, reported today Richard C. Dolloff, of Orono, secretary of the Maine Extension Association.

Dolloff made his membership report at the annual meeting of the Maine Extension Association at the Memorial Union Building on the University of Maine campus Monday afternoon. The meeting was an opening feature, along with the forestry program, of the annual Farm and Home Week. President H. Earl Megquier, of Gray, presided.

The Extension Association membership figure of 17,093 on March 15 is 227 more than it was a year ago, Dolloff said. It includes 10,776 women and 6,317 men.

Eight County Extension Associations have already exceeded their memberships for all of 1959, with three months of the enrollment period remaining. These counties are Hancock, by 170; Southern Aroostook, 114; York, 97; Cumberland, 53; Oxford 56; Somerset, 14; Penobscot, 10; and Knox-Lincoln, 9.

Nine County Extension Associations have topped their memberships of a year ago. They are Hancock, Southern Aroostook, Cumberland, York, Penobscot, Oxford, Knox-Lincoln, Somerset, and Washington.

Dolloff said that he had high hopes of increasing the 1960 Extension Association membership above that of 1959. Maine needs only 241 more members to equal the 1959 state total. This is slightly over half of the increase made last year in the three month period through June 15.
